

Financial Support

M.Ed. and M.S.

The department has a limited number of graduate assistantships available to full time master's level students in Communication Disorders, Educational Psychology and Special Education. The master's level assistantships for one academic semester are $900.00, $1800.00 for two academic semesters and $2300.00 for two academic semesters plus summer term and include a waiver of tuition. Higher amounts may be available under special circumstances.

Ph.D.

There are graduate assistantships for research and for teaching available to full-time doctoral students. These are awarded on a competitive basis to full-time doctoral students in educational psychology and special education. Graduate assistants at the doctoral level receive a minimum of $1200.00 per academic semester plus a minimum of $630.00 for summer term and up to a maximum of $24,000 per year for an annual appointment. All graduate assistantships include a waiver of tuition. Only individuals who have a complete application on file may apply for a graduate assistantship.
